THE LAST DEPARTURE

Of the Human Soul From This Hard Life to the Sweet Hereafter.

HOW PAUL ACCOMPLISHED IT.

More Friends Await Us in Heaven Than Mourn For Us on Earth.

TALMAGE'S REGULAR SUNDAY SERMON

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE DISPATCE.1 BROOKLYN, June 19 .- Rev. Dr. Talmage is now on the Atlantic, having sailed from New York on the 15th inst. for Liverpool, for a preaching tour in England, Scotland, Ireland and Sweden. Previous to his departure he dictated to his stenographer the following farewell sermon to be read by the vast and widely scattered audiences whom it is his weekly privilege to address through the medium of the newspaper press. He took his text from II. Timothy 4:6: "The time of my departure is at hand." Departure! That is a word used only twice in all the Bible. But it is a word often used in the court room, and means the de-sertion of one course of pleading for another. It is used in navigation to describe the distance between two meridians passing through the extremities of a course. It is a word I have recently heard applied to my departure from America to Europe for a preaching tour to last until September. In a smaller and less significant sense than that implied in the text I can say, "The time of my departure is at hand."

Now, departure implies a starting place and a place of destination. When Paul left this world what was the starting point? It was a scene of great physical distress. It was the Tullianum, the lower dungeon the Mamertime prison, Rome, Italy. The top dungeon was bad enough, it having no means of ingress and egress out through an opening in the top. Through that the prioner was lowered, and through that came all the food and air and light received.

The Lower Dungeon Still Worse, It was a terrible place, that upper dun-geon; but the Tullianum was the lower dungeon, and that was still more wretched, the only light and the only air coming through the roof, and that roof the floor o the only light and the only air coming through the roof, and that roof the floor of the upper dungeon. Oh, worn-out, emaciated old man! surely you must be melancholy: no constitution could endure this and be cheerful. But I press my way through the prison until I come up close to where he is, and by the faint light that streams through the opening I see on his lace a supernatural joy, and I bow before him, and I say, "Aged man how can you keep cheerful amidst all this gloom!" His voice startles the darkness of the place as he cries ou: "I am now ready to be offered, and the time of my departure is at hand."

Hark! what is that shuffling of feet in the upper dungeon? Why, Pau! has an invitation to a banquet, and he is going to dine today with the King. Those shuffling feet are the feat of the executioners. They come, and they cry down through the hole of the dungeon, "Hurry up, old man. Come now; get yoursel: ready." Why, Pau! was ready. He had nothing to pack up. He had no baggage to take. He had been ready a good while. I see him rising up, and straightening out his stiffened limbs, and pushing back his white hair from his creviced forehead, and see him looking up through the hole in the roof of the dungeon into the face of his executioners, and hear him say, "I am now ready to be offered, and the time of my departure is at hand."

Then they lift him out of the dungeon, and parture is at hand."

Then they lift him out of the dungeon, and they start with him to the place of execu-tion. They say, "Hurry along, old man, or you will feel the weight of our spear." Paul's Tragic Departure From the Word.

They soon get to the place of execution-Acquie Salvia-and he is fastened to the piliar of martyrdom. It does not take any strength to tie him fast. He makes no resistance. C Paul! why not now strike for sistance. C Paul! why not now strike for your life? You have a great many friends here. With that withered hand just launch the thunder-holt of the neople upon those infamous soldiers. No! Paul was not going to interfere with his own coronation. He was too glad to go, I see him looking up in the face of his executioner, and, as the grim official draws the sword. Paul camly says, "I am now ready to be offered, and the time of my departure is at hand."

What a transition it was! From the

What a transition it was! From the malaria of Rome to the finest climate in all the universe—the zone of eternal beauty and health. His ashes were put in the catacombs of Rome, but in one moment the air of heaven bathed from his soul the last air of heaven bathed from his soul the last ache.

Now, why cannot all the old people have the same holy glee as that aged man had? For the last 40 years you have been dreading that which ought to have been an exhilaration. You say you most fear the struggle at the moment the soul and body part. But millions have endured that moment, and may we not as well? They got through with it and so can we. Besides this, all medical men agree in saying that there is probably no struggle at the last moment—not so much pain as the prick of a pin, the seeming stans of distress being altogether involuntary. But you say, "It is the uncertainty of the future." Now, child of God, do not play the infide!. After God has filled the Bible till it can hold no more with stories of the good things ahead, better not talk about the good things ahead, better not talk about

More Friends Above Than Below. But you say, "I cannot bear to think of you have more friends in heaven than here. Just take the census. Take some large sheet of paper and begin to record the names of those who have emigrated to the other shore; the companions of your school days, your early business associates, the friends of midlife, and those who more recently of midlife, and those who more recently went away. Can it be that they have been gone so long you do not care any more about them, and you do not want their society? Oh, no. There have been days when you have felt that you could not endure another moment away from their blessed companionship. They have gone.

You say you would not like to bring them back to this world of trouble, even if you had the power. It would not do to trust you. God would not give you resurrection power. Before to morrow morning you would be rattling at the gates of the cemetery, crying, to the departed, "Come back to the hall where you slept! Come back to the hall where you used to sit!" and there would be a great burglary in heaven. No, no. Good will not trust you with resurrection power; but he compromises the matter and says, "You cannot bring them where you are, but you can go where they are." They are more lovely now than ever. Were they beautiful here, they are more beautiful there.

Besides that, it is more healthy there for you than here, aged man; better climate there than these hot summers and cold winters and late springs; better hearing; better eye-sight; more tonic in the air; more perfume in the bloom; more sweetness in the song.

What Lies in the Great Beyond? I remark, again, all those ought to feel this joy of the text who have a holy curiosity to know what is beyond this earthly terminus know what is beyond this earthly terminus. And who has not any curiosity about it? Paul, I suppose, had the most satisfactory view of heaven, and he says: "It doth not yet appear what we shall be."

I hope some day, by the grace of God, to go over and see for myself; but not now. No well man, no prospered man, I think, wants to go now. But the time will come, I think, when I shall go over. I want to see what they do there, and I want to see how they do it. I do not want to be looking through the gates ajar forever. I want them to swing wide open. There are lo,000 things I want explained—about you, about myself, about the government of this world, about God, about everything. We start in a plain path of what we know, and in a minute come up against a high wall of what we do not know.

up against a high wall of what we do not know.

I wonder how it looks over there. Somebody tells me it is like a paved city—paved with pold; and another man tells me it is like a fountain, and it is like a tree, and it is like a fountain, and it is like a tree, and it is like a triumphal procession; and the next man I meet tells me it is all figurative. I really want to know, after the body is resurrected, what they wear and what they eat; and I have an immeasureable curiosity to know what it is, and how it is, and where it is. Columbus risked his life to find this continent, and shall we shudder to go outon a voyage of discovery which shall reveal a vaster and more brilliant country?

A man doomed to die stepped on the scaffold, and said in joy, "Now, in ten minutes I will know the great secree." One minute after the vital functions ceased, the little child that died last night knew more than Jonathan Edwards, or St. Paul himself.

Where the Best Society Exists.

Where the Best Society Exists. I remark, again, we ought to have the joy of the text, because, leaving this world, we move into the best society of the universe. You see a great drowd of people in some street, and you say, "Who is passing there?"

What general, what prince is going up there?"
Well, I see a great throng in heaven. I say,
"Who is the focus of all that admiration?
Who is the centre of that glittering company?" It is Jesus, the champion of all worlds, the favorite of all ages.

Do you know what is the first question the soul will ask when it comes through the gate of heaven? I think the first question will be, "Where is Jesus, the Savior that pardoned my sin; that carried my sorrows; that fought my battles; that won my victories?" O radiant one; how I would like to see thee! thou of the manger, but without its humiliations; thou of the Cross, but without it's paugs; thou of the Grave, but without it's paugs; the grave, but without it's paugs; the grave, but without it's paug The Story of Christ's Last Bours.

Now I think what it is. I shall first want to hear the tragedy of His last hours; and then Luke's account of the crucifixion, and to hear the tragedy of His last hours; and then Luke's account of the crucifixion, and Mark's account of the crucifixion, and John's account of the crucifixion will be nothing, while from the living lips of Christ the story shall be told of the gloom that fell, and the devils that arose, and the fact that upon His endurance depended the rescue of a race; and there was darkness in the sky, and there was darkness in the sky, and there was darkness in the sul, and the pain became more heavy, until the mob began to swim away from the dying vision of Christ, and the cursing of the mob came to His ear more faintly, and His hands were fastened to the horizontal piece of the Cross, and His feet were fastened to the perpendicular piece of the cross, and His head fell forward in a swoon as He uttered the last moan and cried, "It is finished."

All heaven will stop to listen until the story is done, and every harp will be put down, and every lip closed, and all eyes fixed upon the divine narrator, until the story is done; and then, at the tap of the baton, the eternal orchestra will rouse up; finger on string of harp, and lips to the mouth of trumpet, there shall roll forth the oratorio of the Messiah, "Worthy is the Lamb that was slain to receive blessing, and riches, and honor, and glory, and power, world without end!"

What He endured, oh, who can tell, To save our souls from death and hell!

What He endured, oh, who can tell, To save our souls from death and hell!

Why Paul Wanted to Go. When there was between Paul and that magnificent Personage only the thinness of the sharp edge of the sword of the execu tioner, do you wonder that he wanted to got O, my Lord Jesus, let one wave of that glory roll over us! Hark! I hear the wedding bells roll over us! Hark! I hear the wedding bells of heaven ringing now. The marriage of the Lamb has come, and the bride hath made herself ready.

And now for a little while goodby! I have no morbid feelings about the future. But if anything should happen that we never meet again in this world let us meet where there are no partings. Our friendships have been delightful on earth, but they will be more delightful in heaven. And now I commend you to God and the word of His grace which is able to build us up, and give us an inheritance among all them that are sanctified.

A FAMOUS PAITH HEALER.

Death of Dr. Culiis, Whose Name Was Known Throughout the World, Boston, June 19. - [Special. ]-Dr. Charles Cullis, the renowned faith healer and projector of the Consumptives' Home, where faith was supposed to be the only medicine used in the treatment of that disease, died of heart disease to-day. He began his faith cure work 30 years ago, and as time went on there was added a Spinal Home, two orphan homes, the Grove Hall Church, the Faith Cure House and the Can-cer Home at Walpole. Churches and mis-sions have also been established, the Beasions have also been established, the Bea-con Hill Church in Boston, the Cottage Street Church in Dorchester, the Lewis Mission in Boston and the Faith Training College of Boston. In addition there is a mission at Boynton, Va., and one among the Chinese in Alameda Cal. Foreign missions have also been established in Siam, Central India and at Balasore, India, and Tract Repositories in Boston, New York and Philadelphia.

To carry on this work large sums of money were required and there was no fund, endowment or known pecuniary provisions whatever existing for support of the homes, but in answer to prayer, it is claimed, and without solicitation by any one, there has been contributed during the past 25 years over $600,000, received day by day, in amounts varying from $1 to $2,000.

The True Lagative Principle of the plants used in manufacturing the pleasant remedy, the Syrup of Figs, has a permanently beneficial effect on the human system, while the cheep vegetable extracts and mineral solutions, usually sold as medicines, are permanently injurious. Being well-informed, you will use the true remedy only. Manufactured by the California Fig.

Wear Your Clothes Out. Clothes will wear out with time and use. This cannot be avoided. By washing them with soap containing free alkali you rot and destroy them. This can be avoided by using Walker's Family Soap. Ask your grocer for it. It costs no more than other soaps.

Not a Fault, The fact that Walker's Family Soap costs no more than other soaps should not be an objection to its use.

Kitchen Extension.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS

University Extension is good, but Kitchen Extension is better. Wider knowledge of better cooking processes means better health and comfort for everybody. Science can never do us better service than by the multiplication of the cooking schools which make healthful means and methods available for even the most modest home.

COTTOLENE

The vegetable substitute for lard, is science's latest gift to the kitchens of the world. Every woman who has ever cooked a meal, knows that lard is disagreeable in use and unhealthy in its effects.

Cottolene is a most satisfactory substitute -- clean, delicate and far more economical. At your grocers.
